

Democratic and Republican Chairmen See Sure Victory

Vance McCormick Says the "Turn of Tide" to Wilson Started Early in Campaign and It Merely Is Growing Stronger.

The following resumes of the Democratic and Republican National for clients of the International News

By VANCE MCCORMICK.

Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, New York, Oct. 26.—In less than two weeks the patriotic men and women of the United States will vote a thundering endorsement of Woodrow Wilson and his administration, and will re-elect a Democratic Senate and House of Representatives. I mention women, because in the States where they enjoy suffrage, my reports indicate that a large majority of them have joined with the men to roll up an unprecedented popular plurality for the President. They will share the glory of the victory, for even in States wherein they have not the right of suffrage, we have daily evidence of the influence they wield in sustaining the President.

There has been much talk within the last few days or two, of the "turning of the tide toward Wilson." It is my view that the so-called tide has been running toward Wilson all the while, and that what the people are pleased to designate the "turning of the tide" is only a visible manifestation of the strong undercurrent that has been moving Wilsonward ever since the St. Louis convention.

Result Never in Doubt.

To be sure, there have been developments and disclosures that have tended to bring this undercurrent to the surface, but it is my candid judgment that the result never has been in doubt. In saying this, I do not underestimate the value of the work that the friends and supporters of the President, and Democratic, Progressive and Independent organizations have rendered in this campaign, and will render up to the closing of the polls on election day. The activity of this legion of loyal men and women has been of inestimable value in combating the onslaughts of the opposition, and disproving their absurd claims and charges. I do not wish to be misunderstood as being overconfident. I am not deceived as to the value of external violence, nor the worth of promoting labor, but I am insensible of the methods and character of the campaign of the opposition. While I scarcely could be more confident of anything than I am of President Wilson's re-election, I am appreciative of the importance of keeping up the fight.

Must Make Result Decisive.

We must make the victory all the more emphatic and must swell the popular plurality throughout the land and in the electoral college. We must and will elect a Congress in thorough sympathy with the President, to co-operate in carrying forward and perpetuating the great accomplishment for the peace and prosperity of the nation. We must make the result so decisive that there can be no question as to the esteem in which Americans hold the President and the Democratic Congress which has sustained him, nor any doubt as to the reputation of the conflicting and contradictory elements composing the opposition.

I haven't a doubt that the next Congress will be Democratic in both branches. Senator Saulsbury, of Delaware, in charge of the Democratic Senatorial campaign, and Representative Frank E. Doremus, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, have given me assurances that convince me that the Democrats will make substantial gains in the House and Senate. The Senatorial and Congressional committees have worked in close cooperation with the National Committee, and I am personally familiar with the conditions on which they predicate their optimistic reports as to the complexion of the next Congress.

Says Wilson Will Sweep Country.

As chairman of the Democratic National Committee, I am in touch constantly and almost continuously with every feature and phase of the campaign from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast and from the Canadian border to our southern boundaries. I have an abiding faith in the character of the reports that have come to me throughout the campaign and the value of the news that is now before me. I am confirmed in the judgment that the President will sweep the country by a popular plurality that will astonish his carping critics and the destructive elements composing the opposition. I await the approach of election day and the counting of the ballots with eager anticipation, confident that the American people will on that day affix their stamp of approval and endorsement upon the candidacy of Woodrow Wilson.

The people are for Wilson because Wilson is for the people, and stands for true Americanism against the pussy-footing attitude of his opponents.
